Let my worship be within the heart that rejoices, for behold, all acts of love and pleasure are my rituals.

Therefore, let there be beauty and strength, power and compassion, honor and humility, mirth and reverence within you.

And thou who thinketh to seek for me, know thy seeking and yearning shall avail thee not, unless thou knoweth the mystery; for if that which you seek, you find not within yourself, you will never find it without.

For behold, I have been with thee from the beginning; and I am that which is a seed at the end of desire.

This poem speaks loud and clear to me and I agree with all the virtues and the spirit of this poem - one that is life affirming and empowering, full of natural wisdom and mysticism. I strongly relate to many of the values in Native American Indian culture, yoga, mysticism and other naturalistic forms of spirituality; but in and among all this, I still have great love and interest for worldly matters - like thriving in business, building a great family and having success in music, art, and contribution to the field of mental health.
